

PROVIDER EDUCATION MATERIALS

American College of Radiology offers lung cancer screening education that focuses on patient-centered screening. This training offers education on best-practices to implement a multidisciplinary screening program. CME credit is available.

The Kentucky LEADS program (Lung Cancer Education, Awareness, Detection, and Survivorship) provides free training for clinicians through the lung cancer spectrum of early detection, diagnosis, treatment, and survivorship. CME credit is available.

LuCA training network specifically targets the primary care provider role in lung cancer screening and early detection through free web-based learning modules and webinars. Additionally, links to practice tools and resources for providers and patients are provided. CME/ CE credit is available for completion of interactive learning modules.

University of Colorado Anschutz Medical Campus offers learning modules for primary care clinicians that focus on shared decision-making, tobacco cessation counseling, and practice planning. CME credit is available.